Will Have a Try for Supremacy in Rowing With the Best of Them.

NEW HAVEN, CONN. December 20.—
According to John Kennedy, coach of the Vale crew, Princeton will be abreast of Yale and Harvard on the water in three years. He said: "I soached Princeton orews in 1831 and 1832, and have maintained over since that she will succeed and become a powerful factor in collegiate rowing. The new Carnegie Lake affords facilities for the work which are not to be equalled in America. There is a long stretch of comparatively still water—ideal conditions for a successful navy. In time Princeton would be a hard college to beat on the water, and I think she should work herself up to the first rank within three years.
